

The Nature Of Reality – Coburn - #64277

Brief description of book as written in the Xlibris press release

New book helps you find your unique path to increased awareness and spiritual freedom

Everyone has the capability to attain a higher state of awareness. To begin this journey of spiritual self-discovery, one must first explore life's basic questions, such as the purpose of creation—who we really are and how we might attain spiritual consciousness. Author Chuck Coburn teaches you to think outside the box as you learn the simple truth about The Nature Of Reality...and how you can change it.

Higher consciousness is possible from a variety of points of view. In this thought-provoking book, the author presents a composite of ancient thinking and wisdom, salted with modern-day notions. He provides you with the tools to discover the structure of what is—the meta-physics of how things really work—in an easily read, non-technical summary of what is. This exploration of the purpose of creation blends up-to-date scientific research and quantum physics with conventional spiritual dogma and New Age metaphysics, with a bit of the skeptic's point of view thrown in for good measure.

In order to truly understand who you are, you need to ponder on the very existence of God and the notion that you are an extension of His image. Follow a tour through a historical perspective of ancient belief systems, which focus on a few who claim to have reached this Higher Consciousness—from Biblical prophets to modern-day soothsayers. See how different levels of perception can coexist simultaneously, and how you can select and explore a personal reality that suits your life purpose. Examine your personal relationship with the universe and the many levels of existence. By changing your viewpoint, you can change your personal reality. Let The Nature Of Reality help you find your unique path to increased awareness and spiritual freedom.

Brief description of book from the rear cover

The Nature of Reality - and how to change it is a easily read spiritual guide that takes us through time and space, from the earliest conscious thought to the complexities of multiple realities and, ultimately, quantum physics.

It explores the purpose of creation and our relationship with the Creator Spirit. It searches to discover who we really are by offering a tour through a historical perspective of a variety of belief systems - from primitive rituals to modern science; from Biblical prophets to modern day soothsayers; from conventional spiritual dogma to New Age metaphysics.

It provides a brief glimpse into time itself and reveals ancient secrets of how we can each change our personal reality. It offers multiple paths to higher consciousness by disclosing the true nature of “what is” – the meta-physics of how things really work – in order that we each might find our own unique path to increased awareness and spiritual freedom.

The author's credentials

Chuck Coburn suddenly and unexpectedly discovered he was psychic at precisely 6:45 PM on a Sunday evening nearly 30 years ago. After years of training with numerous teachers, he became a professional psychic, teacher, author and lecturer, appearing on more than 50 radio shows and hosting his own TV series, "Personal Pathways."

His three books draw from his personal encounters with angels, ghosts and spirit guides as well as first hand experiences with numerous indigenous shamans and sages from all over the world - from an ayahuasca dispensing healer from a headhunting tribe in the Ecuadorian rainforest, to the current incarnation of the Karmapa, sequestered on the top of a sacred mountain in Tibet. He has spent time with an African sandal thrower who talks to trees and Ecuadorian healers who work with Orisha spirits and heal with eggs and bees. He personally assisted a Brazilian psychic surgeon channeling the spirit of Dr Fritz and even a few healers who claim to take their direction from extraterrestrials.

He has encountered playful ghosts in a medieval castle in Germany, despondent spirits beneath an English pub in London's Tyburn Village, a violent spirit in the Gold Country of Northern California and a few other confused souls needing direction to find "the light."

In addition, he has assisted several law enforcement agencies in locating both lost and kidnapped persons as well as the FAA in locating downed aircraft. He has taken part in psychic research and studies of paranormal activity with a US Governmental agency and several universities.

He continues to assist his clients to find and develop their relationship with their personal spirit guides in his classes and workshop and reveals his client's past lives and karma in his personal psychic/spiritual readings in Northern California.

Additional selling points

The author speaks from his first hand experience and it is written in "everyday speak." It is easily read and down to earth. It combines historical information, scientific explanations with useful and instructional how-to-dos . . . along with some light-hearted "asides" to make it real. It is informative and not preachy and is designed to allow each reader to discover their own truth. Wow – I can't wait to read it myself! His previous two books are :
